Fred was Jason 's pet frog from the first Blaster Master. At first an ordinary frog, Fred grew to enormous proportions upon coming into contact with radioactive chest and then led Jason on a chase throughout the underworld. Jason was forced to kill his pet frog not once, but twice, during his journey. Despite Fred's "deaths," he escapes the underworld unscathed along with Jason.

Fred the Frog is shown trapped within the process of transformation that might have revealed his true beauty - implying that he was due some appreciation (or salvation) that had not yet come. This was an apt parallel for Kippenberger, an artist whose relationship with the public was at best problematic - especially when it came to the Fred the Frog works, which several times have provoked scandal.

Martin Kippenberger (1953-1997)

Fred relaxing at the FHG... In the not too distant past along the bank of a Louisiana bayou lived a frog who liked to call himself Fred. In his early years, Fred ' s day went much the same way each and every day: relaxing by the water ' s edge, enjoying the outdoors (perhaps a swim if feeling especially Froggy), evening socials (sometimes croaking till the wee hours of the morning), and feasting on an endless supply of pesky insects that just so happened to taste absolutely delicious (he IS ...
