Peaceful afternoons in the shade can be a great excuse for a picnic, but they can also be an inspiration for some descriptive poetry authored by one of the most original and brilliant people you know: your child. This activity allows him to translate what he observes around him into a beautiful poem.

Instant Poetry! A Writing Exercise | Activity | Education.com

Frame poetry should provide some type of artwork around the body of the poem for a visual connection to the emotion of the poetry. Artwork should emphasize the message of the poem, without confusing the meaning. The principles of design are important when framing poetry.
